

Suppose we are developing a class schedule system that notifies students and teachers about the information of a class such as course no., topic name, teacher name and date with time (24-hour format). We have made two display elements, TeacherDisplay and StudentDisplay. The contents of these two displays look like the following images. Whenever data changes, the display elements are notified with new data, and they display the latest data accordingly.

